An introduction to Amⁱtas

Amⁱtas is an independent management and technical consulting company which focuses exclusively on large organisations where technology is core to their business.

It is our mission to deliver results for our customers. We pride ourselves on developing long term relationships with our clients and becoming their consulting partner of choice. We are committed to developing and expanding our clients' profitability by providing our expertise in the field of technology management.

Amⁱtas

Amⁱtas – the company

We are an independent management and technology consultancy. We deliver concise and specific packages of services solely based on our clients' requirements. We have the agility and expertise to develop and enhance the commercial management of our clients' technology and continued support.

Our confidence in managing risk allows us to offer our services on a fixed price basis. Amⁱtas has an impressive array of highly satisfied multinational and blue chip clients with a good reputation built on integrity, professionalism and delivery.

Our Management Team

Adam Mitchell – 19 years of operational experience in IT infrastructure. He has 12 years of global management. As former Global CTO for Deutsche Bank he has vast experience in M&A, restructuring and outsourcing on both the buy and sell side.

Technology consulting

We specialize in simplifying and distilling client complexity across a broad scope of technology platforms and services to ensure our customers have optimal technology solutions that match business requirements. We provide an external objective view point based on our deep understanding of the requirement and our extensive cross sector experience. We use our capability to solve many common industry problems such as: consolidation, virtualization and rationalization of telecoms, servers, storage and datacentres. The projects where these capabilities are usually deployed are driven by cost or regulatory or risk issues and as such very often involve the topics of regulatory compliance, BCP and Disaster recovery.

Advisory and management services

At Amitas we take the advisory and management service business further than just a person who is qualified to give expert advice to a business. We are not satisfied with just being advisor; having made our recommendations we work alongside our clients to see our proposal come to life. This approach requires credibility and experience, qualities which are shared by all our advisors. We are able to provide expertise in many topics such as organisational change and development, process redesign and commercialization of internal service providers. All of our advisors have many years of industry based experience rather than learning solely through the conventional consultant training route. This means we are not only able to provide independent advice but also we have a deep knowledge of your industry and the challenges you face.

Amitas

Amitas has gained extensive experience through operational execution. Our combined senior management and depth of technical experience means we can offer effective management of technical and political complexity. We offer a global and multicultural service with 90% of our business coming from multinational companies with 70% of our revenue from outside of the UK. Through our use of structured thinking and our ability to quickly establish a fact base we are able to distil complex issues into actionable work plans so that our clients receive the required benefits at the earliest opportunity.

Some of our key clients:

- BT
- Deutsche Bank
- Emagine
- Hitachi
- IATA
- Resolution
- Royal & Sunalliance
- Verizon

Amitas have extensive experience of working with the following service providers:

- Accenture
- BT
- HP Invent
- IBM
- Sun Microsystems

Values

Our values are integral to our engagements

Creativity

We value experience and independence to drive our ideas. We are not constrained by conventionality.

Collaboration

Only by working as a team can we effectively maximise intellectual input to provide robust solutions.

Integrity

Through honouring our commitments and striving to exceed our own high standards we will ensure we have the confidence of our clients.

Performance

Working hard in an effective and efficient way to achieve the maximum benefit.
